

HOME	Ear to the Ground	Columns	Cartoons	Arts &amp; Culture	Digs	Shop	Multimedia	Advertise	Donate	About
----------------------	-----------------------------------	-------------------------	--------------------------	------------------------------------	----------------------	----------------------	----------------------------	---------------------------	------------------------	-----------------------

Trending: barack obama chris hedges debate election 2012 mitt romney

Search Truthdig  >>

MOST READ ▼ REPORTS

NEWSLETTER

Get Truthdig in your inbox
Your email

FOLLOW TRUTHDIG

- Newsletter
- Become a Fan
- Follow Us
- Subscribe

Tell Congress:
Label... signatures: 31,549

start a petition | grab this widget

ADVERTISE
LIBERALLY
BLOGADS NETWORK

SmarterLifestyles™

(New Mexico): 1 weird "loophole" to get car insurance as low as $7

New Mexico - Find today's highest CD rates all in one place.

More cash in your pocket? Help beat the recession with the top yielding CD accounts in the

Binders Full of Women, and Two Women Bound

0

Posted on Oct 17, 2012

By Amy Goodman

You may have noticed that the Green Party presidential candidate, Dr. Jill Stein, was absent from the "town hall" presidential debate at Hofstra University the other night. That's because she was shackled to a chair in a nearby New York police facility, along with her running mate, Green Party vice president nominee Cheri Honkala. Their crime: attempting to get to the debate so Stein could participate in it. While Mitt Romney uttered the now-famous line that he was given "whole binders full of women" while seeking staff as newly-elected governor of Massachusetts in 2002, the real binders were handcuffs used to shackle these two women, who are mothers, activists and the Green Party's presidential ticket for 2012.

I interviewed Stein the day after the debate, after their imprisonment (which ended, not surprisingly, not long after the debate ended). She told me: "We are on the ballot for 85 percent of voters. Americans deserve to know what their choices are. The police said they were only doing job. I said, 'This is about everyone's jobs, whether we can afford health care, whether students will be indentured.' There are critical issues left out of the debate. Ninety million voters are predicted to stay home and vote with their feet that neither Barack Obama nor Mitt Romney represent them. That's twice as many voters than expected for either of them."

Even if Stein and Honkala hadn't been hauled off a public street and handcuffed to those chairs for eight hours, Stein's exclusion from the debate was certain. The debates are very closely controlled by the Commission on Presidential Debates (CPD), which excludes third-party candidates, among other things. George Farah is the founder and executive director of Open Debates, and author of "No Debate: How the Republican and Democratic Parties Secretly Control the Presidential Debates." Farah told me on the morning of the Hofstra debate about how the CPD gained control over the debates from the nonpartisan League of Women Voters: "We have a private corporation that was created by the Republican and Democratic parties called the Commission on Presidential Debates. It seized control of the presidential debates precisely because the League was independent, precisely because this women's organization had the guts to stand up to the candidates that the major parties had nominated."

The League of Women Voters allowed third-party candidate John B. Anderson to participate in a presidential debate in 1980, and in the decade that followed, the two major parties, Republican and Democrat, sparred with the League. In 1988, the parties tried to force the League into a contract detailing how the debates would be run. Farah explained: "It talked about who could be in the audience and how the format would be structured, but the League found that kind of lack of transparency and that kind of candidate control to be fundamentally outrageous and antithetical to our democratic process. They released the contract and stated they refuse to be an accessory to the hoodwinking of the American people and refuse to implement it."

Farah said that early contract was "tame" compared with the binding contract, leaked to Time magazine this week, that governed the so-called town hall, moderated by CNN's Candy Crowley. The 21-page "Memorandum of Understanding" includes a reference to their standards for candidate eligibility to participate. The CPD requires that a candidate have support from "at least 15 percent of the national electorate as determined by five selected national public opinion polling organizations." This is a classic Catch-22. In order to debate, you must have broad support. In order to earn public support, candidates without huge campaign war chests need the access that the televised debates offer. So the Democrats and Republicans control the debates, and limit the public's access to alternative views.

If the Green Party's nominee, Jill Stein, had been allowed to debate, what might the public have heard? To find out, our "Democracy Now!" news hour went ahead and invited major third-party candidates to participate in the debate, virtually, the morning after. In addition to Stein, we had

Advertisement

Energized Obama Takes Round 2 of Presidential Debates

Obama Wins Second Debate With His Record, Not His Vision

If You Don't Vote, You're a Loser

Join the Blockade of the Keystone Pipeline

Romney's Disguise Falls Away

MOST COMMENTS ▶

MOST EMAILED ▶

REPORTS

NEW Obama Punches Back
By Eugene Robinson

NEW Binders Full of Women, and Two Women Bound
By Amy Goodman

NEW Romney's Disguise Falls Away
By E.J. Dionne, Jr.

NEW Obama Is Back
By Robert Reich

EAR TO THE GROUND

NEW Romney's 'Binders Full of Women,' Crowley's Libya Fact Check, and More

NEW Hollande Urges Germany to Reconsider Crisis Response

NEW Housing Starts Pick Up in September

NEW Energized Obama Takes Round 2 of Presidential Debates

Rupert Murdoch to Shareholders: Love Me or Leave Me

me

Pandit Steps Down as Citigroup CEO

A/V BOOTH

NEW Green Party Candidates Arrested at Hofstra Debate

'Democracy Now!' Expands the Debate

Skydiver's Leap Into the Record Book

'Left, Right & Center': The Rorschach Debate

ARTS & CULTURE

NEW The Revolutionary Refused the Torch

By Jonathan Yardley

NEW Paul Krassner: The Politics of Being a Smartass

By Mr. Fish

Let 'Argo' Take You Hostage

By Richard Schickel

'Detropia' Wanders an Urban Wasteland (Video)

DIGS

The Questions Education Reformers Aren't Asking

Dig led by Mike Rose

Gore Vidal: His Life and Legacy

Dig led by Truthdig Staff

The Making of the Atomic Bomb
By Richard Rhodes
$20.00

ment. In addition to Stein, we had Rocky Anderson of the Justice Party and Virgil Goode of the Constitution Party (Libertarian Party candidate Gary Johnson declined).

Instead of the Obama/Romney debate, where each attempted to trumpet his superior commitment to fossil-fuel extraction, the public would have heard Jill Stein say, "We support a Green New Deal, which will put everyone back to work, at the same time that it puts a halt to climate change and it makes wars for oil obsolete." Climate change is simply not discussed in these debates.

That's just one example. Imagine if we had a functional electoral system, with genuine, vigorous, representative debates. Jill Stein and Cheri Honkala are on the ballot in 38 states, and available as write-ins for the rest. Rocky Anderson, with his new Justice Party, is on in 15 states. Now that the candidates have been unshackled, it's time to unshackle the debates.

Denis Moynihan contributed research to this column.

Amy Goodman is the host of "Democracy Now!," a daily international TV/radio news hour airing on more than 1,000 stations in North America. She is the author of "Breaking the Sound Barrier," recently released in paperback and now a New York Times best-seller.

© 2012 Amy Goodman

Distributed by King Features Syndicate

Like 8 people like this.

GO TO AUTHOR PAGE

TAGS: 2012 amy goodman barack obama binders of women campaign debate democracy democrats election 2012 green party health care hofstra university jill stein mitt romney politics republicans

Related Entries

Obama Punches Back

Romney's 'Binders Full of Women,' Crowley's Libya Fact Check, and More

Romney's Disguise Falls Away

Obama Is Back

SHARE THIS ARTICLE

Email to a friend

Get truth delivered to your inbox every week.

Your email here Sign up

Previous item: Romney's Disguise Falls Away

Next item: Obama Punches Back

New and Improved Comments

If you have trouble leaving a comment, review this help page. Still having problems? Let us know. If you find yourself moderated, take a moment to review our comment policy.

nation...

[2011]: Drivers with no DUIs are eligible to receive up to 50% off car insurance...

Searching for binders ft
1. Zerbee Binders
Orders Over $77 Ship Free. Zerbee Binders And Save!
zerbee.com

AdChoices

The Naive and the Sentimental Novelist

By Orhan Pamuk
$15.03

Jr. Raglan
$22

MORE ITEMS

0 comments

0 Stars

Leave a message...

Discussion

Community

No one has commented yet.

ALSO ON TRUTHDIG

Mr. Fish: Paul Krassner: The Politics of Being a Smartass - Truthdig 5 comments

Chris Hedges: How Do You Take Your Poison? - Chris Hedges' Columns - ... 313 comments

Chris Hedges: What Is Happening to Muslims Will Happen to the Rest of ... 221 comments

Peter Z. Scheer: If You Don't Vote, You're a Loser - Truthdig 171 comments

Housing Starts Pick Up in September - Truthdig 3 comments

RECOMMENDED FOR YOU

What's this?

Finding Beauty In Blotto: Drunken Portraits Of Cardiff After Dark
Fast Company

Guns N Roses Sells Electric Dryer Used on Tour in 1980s Reviewed

Nikon Coolpix S800c First Impressions Review Reviewed

Knowing When It's Time To Abandon A Project Fast Company

Wendy's Gets A New Logo: Will The Pigtails Survive? Fast Company